Johnny Hong is a Summer Associate at Barran Liebman, where he supports our employment, labor relations, and benefits practices. Johnny drafts memoranda, conducts legal research, and develops policy procedures, trainings, and handbooks. Prior to joining Barran Liebman, Johnny served as a Legal Intern for Google, and clerked in prominent private practice firms in South Korea.

Johnny received his B.A. in Economics from Cornell University, and he will be entering his final semester as a J.D. candidate at Duke University School of Law this fall. He is also an active member in Duke's Environmental Law & Policy Forum, serving as an Article Editor.

Johnny is well-traveled, having toured throughout East Asia and playing on an ice hockey team in Canada for seven years. In addition to speaking native Korean, Johnny served as a Senior English Language Instructor at the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy & Health Sciences University, teaching college-level English to students transferring to pharmacy school in Boston.
